

Multilingual Poster “Solidarity”

Typography Project

Goal:

To practice typographic layout featuring multiple languages.
An exploration of diverse letterforms.

Materials:

- Sketch book
- Adobe Creative Suite
- High quality paper for printing
- White artboard
- Rubber cement or spray adhesive

Readings:

- <https://thetricontinental.org/our-history/>
- <https://www.docspopuli.org/CubaWebCat/gallery-01.html>
- Revolucion Cuban Poster Art by Lincoln Cushing

Process:

- Review the digital collection of OSPAAAL prints (can include class discussion on points of inspiration).
- Individual journaling on the prompt: “what does international solidarity mean to me?”
- Sketch your own poster concept featuring the word “Solidarity” in 4 different languages with at least one of those languages being in a non-Roman script such as Arabic, Mandarin, Khmer, Tamil, etc. (in class critiques).
- Complete your composition (11x17 inch format). You can select relevant fonts or hand letter the words. (in class critiques).

Final submission

- Print your final composition on high quality paper and trim to 11x17 inches.
- Mount on artboard with a 2 inch border.
- Artist statement: write 1 paragraph describing your piece. Include your full name and date.

“Solidarity” by Olivio Martinez, 1972, OSPAAAL 54x33cm offset. Note: a large collection of OSPAAAL posters can be seen on the Docs Populi website created by archivist Lincoln Cushing. Consider reviewing additional pieces with your class and analyzing the content of the posters. For additional historical context, reference Revolucion!: Cuban Poster Art by Lincoln Cushing.

Note to instructors:

Depending on the experience of your students, and the amount of time available, you can scale the scope of work up or down. A simpler approach to this assignment can still include the readings about OSPAAAL and the journaling activity, while focusing simply on the form of the letters and words.
